DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1, 5, 7, and 9-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Iwatani et al. (US 6,629,512 B2).

The applied reference has a common assignee with the instant application.

Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) might be overcome either by a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not the invention "by another," or by an appropriate showing under 37 CFR 1.131.

With respect to claims 1 and 14, Iwatani et al. discloses a hybrid vehicle comprising an engine 10 and motor (not shown, but recited in col. 37, line 3), a heat impartation element 21, an intention determination element or starter 26, and a running control element or ECU 30, wherein said engine is preheated in response to the starter switch being "ON" and a temperature reading of the engine and refrains from starting the engine until preheating is complete, as shown in figures 10, 11, and 29-31.

With respect to claims 5, 7, and 9-11, Iwatani et al. discloses the preheating controls as capable of being executed in response to at least two parameters of the gear change ratio (or shifter position), pedal operation, and/or vehicle speed (or output shaft rotation), which would inherently require sensors for each respective element, as recited in columns 37-42.

With respect to claims 12 and 13, at least the engine coolant is heated which would increase drivability, as recited in the abstract.

With respect to claims 15-18, the method recited in these claims is inherently performed in the operation of the hybrid vehicle of Iwatani et al. described above in the rejection of claims 1 and 14.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed 5/23/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. With respect to the applicant's arguments concerning claims 1, 14, and 15, the added limitation of the heat impartation control element as being initiated in response to at least one of the accelerator pedal, shift lever, or a predetermined speed, is disclosed in Iwatani et al. column 42, lines 9-13, which indicate that the engine preheating can be initiated by "the pedal operation", which reads on the added limitation. For these reasons the rejection stands.

Conclusion

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
